Summary

I constantly try to challenge myself, both in my job and in life. I am not just a photographer. I am a person that thinks creative thoughts all the time. The best way for me to convey my thoughts is visually through images but I also have a passion for writing, art, design amongst many other things.

Being self employed you have to be on your feet all the time. There are no working hours - every hour is work. When your job is your passion that is the only way there is. Every moment is an opportunity to expand and learn and every connection is a possible new client. I am a photographer but I am also a PR agency with one important client: me.

I love finding new ways of branding myself and my art. That is why I hardly ever say no to jobs or challenges. If the job is not up my alley - I might learn something. If the job is a challenge - I'll defiantly learn something.

Life is about taking risks and the path I have chosen is for sure a risk. It is not an easy life - but easy is boring. And my life is anything but!
